Hosler Shows Champion At Manheim Beef Show

Wilbur Hosler came within one class of repeating his 1961 clean sweep of the Manheim Fall Beef Show Wednesday night

The 20 year old 4-H'er from Manheim R3, nudged the 980 pound Hitt Farms Angus calf into the top spot in the field of 36 steers.

In the showmanship contest Hosler's perfect form won the nod from judge Tony Dobrosky, county agent from York Hosler handled several steers in the show exchanging steers with several other showmen, in proving his skill at the art of exhibiting beef Last year, Hosler went on to take the fitting contest but this year failed to place in the top three "I knew I wouldn't win that" the farmer-auctioneer said, "I didn't have time to wash him enough"

A second Angus from the Hitt Farms Landenberg, Pa., was shown to the reserve champion spot by Terry Petticoffer Elizabethtown R3 Petticoffer the 17 year old son

Blocky Angus Wins At New Holland Beef Show

A blocky, 1090 pound Angus waddled away with the purple rosette of the Grand Championship in the New Holland Baby Beef Club roundup at New Holland Fair Thursday

The champion, owned and entered by 18 year old Richard Leaman, 2554 Creek Hill Road, was shown by Harold, 15, a brother of Richard.

The steer's owner, a graduate of Conestoga Valley High School who found it impossible to be away from his job on Thursday, realized nearly $600 from the sale of his project after the show

The top steer was purchased by the New Holland Sales Stables, site of the show, for top price of 55 cents a pound

The reserve champion, a Hereford, shown by Marie Grumbine 2480 Horseshoe Roads weighed 1040 and was purchased by H D Matz, Sheridan R1 for 40 cents a pound

In the open show, William Fisher, East Earl R1, beat out Larry Weaver, New Holland R1. The steers stood in the reverse position at the Lampeter show a week earlier

The fitting championship went to Elvin Hess, Bareville R1, and Carl Weaver, New Holland R1 took the showmanship contest

Following are the placings in the show

Manheim Dairy Show Winners Include One Repeat Champion

A three year old Ayrshire cow overcame the handicap of showing dry in the Manheim Farm Show to take the Grand Championship for the show for the second consecutive year.

Judy Flory, Lititz R2, the 12 year old daughter of Mr and Mrs. Lloyd G Flory, showed Florydale Beautena to the purple rosette after taking the senior championship of the breed with the cow, and the junior championship with her junior yearling

Beautena was third in the open class at the 1961 Farm Show in Harrisburg, while Thursday's junior champion stood at the top of the senior calf class at the same state show

Another county bred cow took the championship of the Holstein classes Richard Zimmerman herdsman for Wilbur Hiestand, Salunga, showed a four year old cow to the top of that breed

The cow, Wick-Haven Anetta Roburke, was bred by A. W Wickenheiser, Salunga, but purchased by Hiestand at a state Holstein sale as a yearling.

From Where We Stand . . .

EGGtober Promotes The Use Of Eggs

The Pennsylvania egg industry is taking advantage of a catchy paraphrase to promote the use of eggs

By the clever change of October to EGGtober, the poultrymen point out that fall is here and the time for hearty breakfasts is the ideal time to begin using more eggs in everyday meals

The promotion is being sponsored nationwide by various egg-producer organizations

We commend the poultrymen on this effort to increase the use of their product We believe it is the duty of commodity groups to help build a market for their product

There are those who will say that a pound of food is a pound of food and when one commodity fills the stomach, another must give way to make room To a certain degree this is so, but the manufacturers of useless, or nearly useless beverages, and the makers of high priced but nutritionally unbalanced food products, are competing for the food dollar and the space in the stomach of the consumer Unless we, who have nutritionally balanced, wholesome food products for sale, make it attractive for the consumer to buy those products, we will be faced by a declining market instead of an increasing one

A promotional campaign of this sort is not cheap — in any sense of the word It can be conducted on a very high plane and in good taste, but it does cost money

We believe money spent in promoting the use of food sound, wholesome, nutritious farm products is money well spent

At least that's how it looks from where we stand

Applebutter Making

Apple butter will simmer in a huge copper kettle set over an open fire; cabbage will be shredded for sauerkraut, tobacco leaves will be rolled into cigars, and farm implements, some of them nearly 200 years old will be employed by costumed workers in recreating the activities of farmyard, field and kitchen which, in yesteryear, marked summer's end.

The foregoing is part of the description of what will go on during the yearly Fall Harvest Days festival at the Pennsylvania Farm Museum at Landis Valley

Whether you take in the merrymaking along with the three to four thousand visitors expected during the October 6-7 week end, or whether you enjoy a more leisurely tour of the museum during the week or on some other week end, we urge all Lancaster Countians to take time to visit this local tourist attraction It will help you appreciate the methods of farming available to us all in this more advanced age

At least that's how it looks from where we stand

Congratulations

Congratulations are in order for the Lancaster Livestock Market

The Lancaster Stock Yards, the home of the Lancaster Livestock Market, will be the East's focal point for the centennial celebration of National Terminal Livestock Markets Month all during the month of October.

The Stockyards will invite all farmers and business men to visit its facilities during the month long open house to observe as cattle from as far south as Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Maryland, and as far north as Maine, are penned throughout the yards

Terminal Markets for livestock were first instituted in the United States a hundred years ago Thus it is fitting that Lancaster, the largest Terminal Livestock Market in the East celebrates, along with the other American livestock markets, National Terminal Livestock Markets Month

At least that's how it looks from where we stand.

Keep Them Honest

The Billie Sol Estes affair, which has captured the newspaper headlines over the past three months, may serve one constructive purpose All of us should resolve to elect only able, honest men to the posts of community and county committeemen for the administration of farm programs

Considering the thousands of men who serve on A.S.C. committees throughout the country, the percentage which has strayed from the straight and narrow is infinitesimally small Unfortunately, however, their misdeeds have reflected on all of agriculture.

Too often in recent years committee posts have gone begging or have been filled by those who have eagerly sought the jobs though they may not be the best qualified. In some respects, therefore, it is surprising that there have not been more episodes hitting the headlines.

Whether we agree or disagree with the farm programs enacted by Congress is of little consequence If they are the law of the land and farmer committees are to administer them, we have the firm obligation of responsible citizens to elect the most capable men in our townships and our counties to fulfill this responsibility This is a duty we cannot and must not shirk

Do Beliefs Matter?

Lesson for October 7, 1962

SOME beliefs matter, some don't. What two historians think about an obscure Egyptian general about 2000 years before Christ, makes mighty little difference really, even if they fought a duel over it Nobody likes to be disagreed with, but those who have listened to family quarrels will testify that the quarrel is often over something very trifling

Dr. Foreman

The one who is "right" could much better keep his (or her) mouth shut and let the other one think what he or she pleases, the truth in this argument may be so unimportant that it could be proved twice over and still make no difference.

Some beliefs do matter

All the same, some beliefs do matter By "belief" we mean (for the moment) believing that something or other is true By "matter" we mean make some important difference to somebody, either the believer himself or other persons Still even this is not exactly definite What does "important difference" mean? What is a "difference" and when does it begin to be important? This can perhaps be illustrated. Take the sentence: GOD IS LOVE. Suppose you woke up some morning and found that this sentence is not true? Suppose you had always believed it was true and now discovered you were wrong? It would certainly do away with the Christian religion. It would mean that it no longer made sense for you to try to love your neighbor or to love any one If God is love, then human love is (so to speak) going with the current of the universe, it is being in harmony with God the Creator. If God is not love, then human love works against the universe, and must eventually be crushed by it Henceforth it would be more god-like to live a life controlled by hate So it does make all the difference in the world not only whether you believe in God but what kind of God you believe in.

"Saving faith"

More about that next week. For now, the point is that some beliefs do matter, a great deal. The kind of belief which is vitally important is called "saving" faith. By this is meant faith that sets the believer over on the side of God, and not on the side against Him. God as a friend or God as an enemy, which? The question answers itself. God as a friend or God as a stranger? There's no argument as to which any sane person would prefer.

But there is one meaning of "belief" we have not mentioned yet. That is, believing in someone. This is the kind of belief that is closely kin to trust, confidence, reliance, commitment. I may believe about a certain bus that it is going to St. Louis and that the ticket I have in my pocket is good for the trip. I may believe any number of true facts about that bus but not all that believing is going to move me an inch nearer where I want to go. I have to trust myself to the bus, get on, take a seat and relax. That is believing in the bus.

So I may believe many true things about God, but unless I believe in God enough to trust myself to Him, I have not taken the step that sets me actually on the side of God, I have not yet had saving faith.

Results

Some of the results of faith that matters, or saving faith, cannot be observed by outsiders, not even by intimate friends. What you feel like deep down inside is something in and for yourself alone. But the Christian religion does not operate with invisible virtues and shadowy joys. People sometimes ask: So and so made a profession of faith long ago, but still he is one of the meanest men in town. It looks like not even belief in God makes much difference to him. Is this saving faith? The answer, of course, is that in such a case the profession of faith was only that,—a profession, a matter of words. A man can say he believes, or even think he believes, without really doing so. Really and truly to believe in the true God as Christ has shown him to us, is bound to make a difference in the way we live, and not only in the way we think.

To Utilize Forage Growth

Many dairy and livestock producers are short of hay and silage this fall Recent rains will result in good growth of pastures and hay fields The grazing or green chopping of this growth late into the fall will save winter feed supplies Only sudan grass and the aftermath growth of sorghum or the sorghum-sudan grass hybrids are dangerous after a killing frost these two crops should not be fed fresh after frost

To Be Careful With Shipped Cattle

Feeder cattle introduced on the farm and where there are already cattle should be kept separate for at least two weeks Shipping fever is very contagious and shipped cattle should not come in contact with adapted animals, they should not eat from or drink out of the same trough or water bowl Shipped cattle should be kept quiet and allowed to rest for several days after arriving on the farm

To Vaccinate Hogs

The hog population of southeastern Pennsylvania continues high with considerable traffic in the moving of feeder pigs and breeding animals. Hog cholera is still a threat to every hog producer and a very contagious disease without any cure All feeders and breeders are urged to vaccinate all their animals in order to eliminate this disease; it does not cost to vaccinate — it pays.

To Prevent Chilling of Dairy Cow Udders

Fall is here and frosty nights with cooler ground temperatures are on the way; dairymen are urged to house their cattle when colder weather arrives in order to prevent the chilling of the delicate udder tissues and the risk of udder inflammation. Many milking herds are allowed to remain out at night too late into the fall when the ground gets cold.

The recommendations to be voted upon are as follows. We recommend

1. The elimination of the license provision of the present margarine law

2. That the bacteria count in raw milk be reduced from 200,000 at the farm and 400,000 prior to pasteurization to 100 000 at the farm and 200,00 prior to pasteurization.

3. That meat inspection remain in the Department and that spot inspection be enforced more rigidly

4 That the vehicle code be amended to permit farm tractors and other farm machinery to be towed to the garage for repairs

5. That the state association (PFA) appoint a committee to study "Project 70' program

6. That an itemized statement be presented for all land or property acquired by Public Domain.

At the annual meeting, the state association will launch its campaign to sell seat belts and fire extinguishers to members at cost, according to Harold Rohrer, county president.

Easy To Move Appliances

More portability in large kitchen appliances looks like one of the next major things to come from research laboratories. Such new ranges, refrigerators, and other appliances will be lighter in weight so they'll be easy to move, points out Helen Bell, Penn State home management extension specialist. This portability feature will permit homemakers to shift kitchen equipment to their liking.

Alfalfa weevil (left) and spittlebug (right) can do enormous damage to forage. One dieldrin application before December 1st will control both pests next season.

URGENT:

You have only until December 1st to get near-perfect control of next year's alfalfa weevils and spittlebugs with just one insecticide application. Read how powerful dieldrin makes it possible.

TESTS and on-the-farm results prove that fall application of dieldrin gives you three benefits no other control method can offer.

1. Dieldrin controls both alfalfa weevil and spittlebug.

2. Dieldrin eliminates the expense of a separate spittlebug spray in the spring.

3. Fall application of dieldrin saves time and effort. You control insects when work load is low. You make your application when fields are dry—you avoid trying to pull spray equipment over fields made soggy by spring rains.

Stops infestations before they build up

Fall application of dieldrin kills alfalfa weevil and spittlebug adults before they can go into hibernation—before they've had a chance to lay their eggs.

RESULT new generations that would ordinarily develop during late winter and early spring are virtually wiped out before they get started.

How fall application of dieldrin saves you money

Fall application of dieldrin saves you money two ways

First You do two jobs with one application. This saves you insecticide, time and labor.

Second Dieldrin is so powerful that just one pound per acre is all it takes to do the job.

When to make your dieldrin application

Dieldrin can be applied anytime up to December 1st. Control is not affected by unfavorable weather conditions.

NOTE Livestock should not graze on dieldrin-treated forage until the following spring.

Where to get dieldrin

Dieldrin is available from your local insecticide dealer under many well-known brand names. It comes as liquids, granules and in ready-made fertilizer mixes. Dieldrin formulations can be applied with standard air or ground equipment. Whichever formulation you choose, be sure to look for the name dieldrin on the label or in the ingredient statement.

Shell Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemicals Division, 2299 Vauxhall Road, Union, New Jersey.

GROWER REPORTS ON 3 YEARS' RESULTS

"Last year, for the third year in a row, we found that fall application of dieldrin gave us nearly perfect control of alfalfa weevil, spittlebug and other pests," reports Dean Snyder, Farm Manager, H. E. Millard Lime & Stone Co., Millarden Farms Division, Annville, Pennsylvania. "In fact, we have found that the one fall application of dieldrin is the only insecticide application we have to make on our 150 acres of alfalfa."

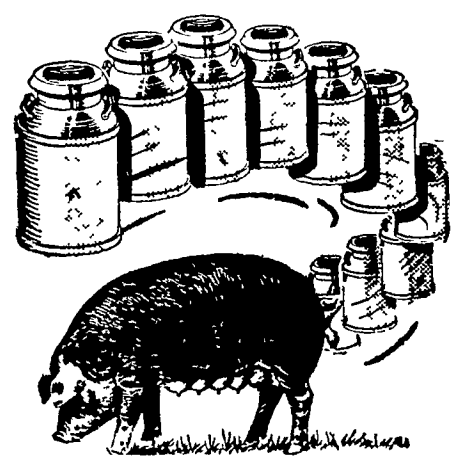
The Cows Said.. YES!

It's the animals who decide for Purina how Chows will look, feel, smell, and taste . . . how they will be made and what they will be made of.

Traditionally, a milking ration had to "look good" . . . contain lots of crimped and rolled grains and be bulky. Almost ten years of work by Purina Dairy Researchers proved this assumption wrong!

A long series of time-consuming experiments began. Traditional "good-looking" ingredients were removed, and the cows responded with up to 2000 pounds more milk per lactation. While dairymen traditionally said "no" . . . the cows said "yes" to this change, and Purina high-energy milking rations came into being. One of these rations is Purina Cow Chow D. We suggest you try it. If you do you'll prove to yourself that Purina feeding costs you less.

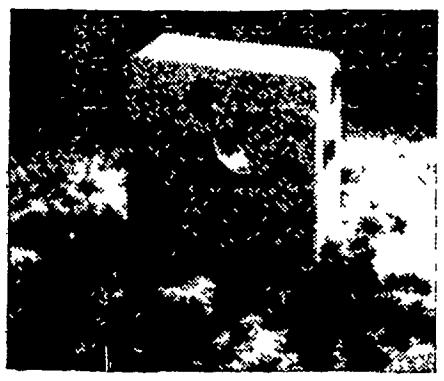
Do You Know . . . Sows Produce 100 Gallons Of Milk Each Year



A brood sow is a factory — a "pig factory" — and she needs help to produce to capacity. At the Purina Research Farm on the Purina Hog Program, sows each year produce more than 100 gallons of milk; wean 18 pigs; and maintain their own bodies. These are mighty big jobs.

Purina Sow Chow — fed with your grain — is designed and researched especially for these big jobs. Get Sow Chow at our store with the Checkerboard Sign.

NEW!... IMPROVED Purina Fly Checker



Kill flies like magic this summer with new, improved Purina Fly Checkers. They attract flies, then, kill'em in bunches. Just set plenty of Fly Checkers where flies gather around your barn, Pig Parlor, feedlot, poultry house, or home.

Here are advantages to Purina Fly Checkers:

- ATTRACT FLIES
- KILL ON CONTACT
- EASY TO USE
- LONG LASTING
- ECONOMICAL

Stop in for a six-pak of Purina Fly Checkers . . . at our Checkerboard Store . . . when you're in town. And look over our assortment of Purina Fly Killers — sure death to flies on your farm or ranch.

Farm Prices Rise Slightly During Month

Prices received by Pennsylvania farmers for their agricultural products during the month ending September 15 increased four per cent from a month earlier. The price level was five per cent above the same period last year and was at the highest level since February 1961, according to figures released this week by the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The increases during the period were mainly the result of higher prices received for livestock prices. Leading the increase in livestock prices were milk and eggs. Increases over last year were caused by higher prices for most crops plus slightly higher prices for livestock and livestock products.

The index of prices received, which is the barometer of farm business and indicates the trend of changes in prices farmers receive, stood at 235 per cent of the base (1910-14 = 100). The index of the previous month was 226 compared with 223 for the month last year.

The index of prices received for crops held steady over the month, but was 13 per cent above a year ago. Over the past month increases in prices of corn and hay were balanced by decreases in potato, wheat and most vegetable prices. The large upswing over 1961 September prices was the result of a general advance for most crops The one exception was a decline in tobacco prices.

Do You Know Cheese?

By Mrs. Richard C. Spence

Cheese does not present the same picture to everyone. Many think of golden Cheddar when cheese is suggested Others think of mottled Blue cheese odoriferous Limburger or lacy Swiss They are all cheeses along with the many other varieties that belong to this large dairy family.

If you want to add new flavor and fun to your home become familiar with the many different kinds of cheese Soon you'll find yourself looking for and clipping recipes in which cheeses that were once unfamiliar are starred

Though there are more than 400 cheeses there are probably only about 18 different types or kinds of natural cheese None of these are made by the same exact method Let's find out more about several of them

Parmesan and Provolone are two popular Italian-style cheeses Both are white firm and pungently flavored Parmesan was first produced in the vicinity of Parma Italy and hence got its name When Parmesan is young it is soft and slightly crumbly But when mature, it is very hard and must be grated for use Sprinkle flakes over salads soups pasta dishes as spaghetti macaroni and noodles

Provolone is a cheese that's readily associated with pasta dishes too It has a delightfully smoky flavor is light in color smooth textured and cuts without crumbling

Swiss cheese is one you've surely enjoyed alone or with fruit in a rye sandwich But have you tried it in cooking? Swiss cheese was first made in the Canton of Bern in the Emmental Valley of Switzerland about the middle of the fifteenth century. In Switzerland because of its birthplace, it is called Emmentaler cheese This large hard pressed-curd cheese with an elastic body and mild rather sweet flavor was first made in our country by Swiss immigrants about 1950 Among the hard cheeses it ranks next to Cheddar in the amount produced each year The holes or eyes by which Swiss is readily identified, develop in the curd as the cheese ripens

If you're not familiar with Edam in cooking you'll certainly want to become better acquainted This semi-soft to hard, sweet-curd cheese was first made in the vicinity of Edam in the Province of North Holland Netherlands Though its characteristic shape is a crimson cannon ball, it's also made in loaf shape The outer covering is red paraffin or some other tightly adhering red coating

The mild, nut-like slightly salty flavor of Edam and Gouda its sister cheese makes them especially appealing for appetizer trays. To serve, cut off the top, so each person can help himself, or cut the ball into wedges

And now for some easy-to-make cheese recipes featuring some of the aforementioned cheeses

Success In Canning Tomatoes

Start with standard canning jars so lids will fit properly and you know jars won't break with heat. Check the top edge and the rim of each jar, and you might use a thin cloth over your fingers as you carefully go around the rim of the jar to check for nicks or rough spots

Always use new rubbers with a one-piece lid and a new inner part of a two-section lid. When you buy two-part lids, check them before leaving the store See if they separate easily and aren't stuck together Check lids you have on hand the same way

Follow instructions for using the lids Process tomatoes in a boiling water bath, and be sure the water covers the jars and boils vigorously during the processing time

After processing be sure to tighten only jar lids that need it Keep instructions for using lids handy in case you need to refer to them

Frozen Orange Juice Concentrate

Frozen orange juice concentrate has been one of our fastest growing food products in terms of volume produced and used in this country

Production has increased from two hundred twenty-six thousand gallons in 1946 to almost a hundred million gallons in the 1961-62 processing season

Acceptance of frozen orange juice concentrate by large numbers of consumers accounted for this rapid expansion. Consumers apparently found the convenience flavor, ease of storage, and relative price to their liking

Automatic Clothes Dryer Saves Effort

Drying clothes in an automatic dryer may help keep clothes white and free from damage, points out Helen E. Bell, extension home management specialist, the Pennsylvania State University.

Chemicals in the air, dirt, and dust cause some graying of clothes. Leaving colored articles to hang in strong sunlight can cause considerable fading, she adds.

Studies have been made to see how much effort is used with a dryer and in hanging clothes outdoors. In one study, which measured steps, it was found that in a typical laundry it took two steps to the dryer and 625 to hang the same clothes outdoors, Miss Bell says.

Another study measured effort in foot-pounds — the moving one pound of clothes one foot. Figures show line drying took 43,000 foot-pounds of work while using the dryer took 1,000 foot-pounds. Using the dryer eliminates carrying the basket and the bending and stretching needed to hang each wet article.

Women who line-dry clothes can do some things to get better resuts. Miss Bell suggests they can get the wash out in early morning or late afternoon when the heat of the sun is less, or they can have lines in the shade. They can take clothes from the line for ironing when they are damp dry to cut down the time in the sunlight.

trition conscious when they shop for food. Last year, the average American shopper spent a dollar this way . . . thirty-four cents for meats cents for vegetables and fruits; and poultry; twenty-three nineteen cents for dairy foods; sixteen cents for bread and cereals; and eight cents for miscellaneous products. Consumers usually spend about one-fifth of the food dollar on dairy foods, one of the basic four food groups recognized as the foundation for a good diet.

Almost half the nation's milk supply is used as fluid milk and cream. The other half is used in the manufacture of ice cream, butter, cheese, nonfat dry milk, and many other dairy products.

The average American likes American cheese better than ever . . he ate slightly more than five and a half pounds of it during 1961 — this was an all-time high figure. He also ate plenty of other kinds of cheese so that during the year his total use of cheese was eight and a half pounds.

Beautiful Layer Cakes

Use the pan size as directed in the recipe or on the cake mix package If the pans are too small, the batter may run over the edge It the pans are too large, the layers will be thin and have poor volume.

Layer cakes will have a more velvety, fine-grained texture if you bake them in pans with straight sides.

Points On Points For Tractor Mechanics

Although it's usually advisable to install new breaker points in the distributor when servicing a tractor engine you may sometimes find it necessary to clean and adjust the old ones due to an emergency.

Should emergency service become necessary, agriculture engineers offer the following advice on this subject.

When working on the points be sure to use crocus cloth as the buffing agent. Sandpaper or other abrasives may damage the contact surfaces and leave minute particles of abrasive in the distributor or magneto which can cause excessive wear.

After reinstalling the points, clean them thoroughly with a strip of lint-free tape moistened with ether or an equivalent solvent.

Pull the tape back and forth across the contact to remove foreign material then, repeat the process with a dry cloth to remove all residue and moisture from the contact surfaces.

Taking the time to perform this operation will pay dividends in longer point life the engineers say, since one of the major causes of point oxidation is improper cleaning.

New points, too, should always be cleaned after installation. This is necessary because a fine film of oil left by the fingers can contact the point surfaces, causing rapid oxidation.

If contamination from oil or grease should present a chronic problem, the trouble could be a worn distributor drive shaft bushing. An excessively worn bushing may let oil fumes from the oil breather cap enter the distributor through the distributor cap vents.

Also, using the wrong type of lubricant on the cam may result in point contamination, especially if it melts at high temperature Special lubricants, available for distributor cams, minimize this problem.

Shoppers Find A Buyer's Market

Food shoppers continue to find leading markets competing for the consumer's food dollar. This is particularly evident in food ads this week on "meat specials" and seasonal sales of canned goods, reveals Tom Piper, Penn State Extension Marketing Agent. Alert shoppers can profit from this situation by studying food ads before shopping.

Canned fruits and vegetables appear on the list of featured items at this time of year as storage adjustments are made to accomodate the newly packed crops. Cling peaches, cherries, fruit cocktail, pears and snap beans are the leading candidates for sales emphasis. Indications are that there'll also be some big promotional drives on pineapple, corn and tomato products.

Fresh, crisp apples are attracting attention at produce counters as harvesting continues at a rapid pace. Red Delicious, Jonathan, Cortland, Golden Delicious and McIntosh are popular varieties in plentiful supply and at seasonally low prices. Grapes, cranberries, and Bartlett pears are economical choices this week.

The Florida grapefruit harvest is gaining speed and some fruit has begun to reach market Some early season oranges are available, the first of a big crop which is expected to be of good quality. Light shipments and labor disputes have reduced banana supplies, resulting in higher prices.

Irish potatoes, cabbage, sweet potatoes, cauliflower, carrots, celery, squash and leafy greens lead the list of plentiful fresh vegetables. Lower lettuce prices are in

Water Pollution Common; Analysis Only Sure Test

About half of the individual water supplies tested in Pennsylvania are found to be polluted, an agricultural engineer at the Pennsylvania State University reported at a recent meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers in Morgantown, W. Va.

Mark D. Shaw engineer with the Agricultural Experiment Station at Penn State, said the increasing occurrence of virus-borne diseases, such as infectious hepatitis or jaundice, sometimes transmitted through water, calls attention to the problem of pollution.

The Penn State researcher claimed a bacteriological analysis is the only sure way of knowing wheher a water treatment device is giving satisfactory service.

Stressing the need for bacteriological analysis, Shaw said municipal water supplies are sampled from 1 to 500 times each month, depending on the size of the community served.

He announced research is underway at Penn State to develop a water pasteurization system using a standard water heater and storage tank. Pasteurization can be fully auomatic, he indicated, and there is no off-taste or odor.

He urged that qualified dealers or organizations servicing purifiers be engaged to install and maintain all units In addition to pasteurization purifying methods are chlorination, silver purification, and ultraviolet sterilization.
